Sullivan

On June 8, Sullivan County Library's Helen Graham will address a meeting of the Sullivan County Jewish Community Center in Monticello. She will speak on the Yiddish book drive and the need to preserve Yiddish literature.

The drive is a project of the Monticello Yiddish Book Center, which has been collecting Yiddish books for over a decade. The center is committed to preserving Yiddish literature for future generations.

Graham will discuss the importance of preserving Yiddish literature and the role of the center in this effort. She will also talk about the challenges of collecting and preserving Yiddish books.

The meeting will be held at the Sullivan County Library, 102 Main Street, Monticello. It is open to the public and there is no charge.

More than 300,000 Yiddish books have been collected and cataloged by the center. These books are essential for understanding the history and culture of the Jewish community in the area.

The Yiddish book drive is part of the center's mission to preserve and promote Yiddish literature. The center is working to create a Yiddish library that will be accessible to all who are interested in learning more about this important cultural heritage.
